

Birthplace of Complex Care for Central Texas

Ashley, Madisyn and Karen Kish, MD, Ob/Gyn

Ashley knew her first pregnancy would not include a typical delivery. As a diabetic, her fluctuating blood sugar level could affect the baby's development; and when prenatal scans showed fetal abnormalities, her baby was diagnosed with heterotaxy syndrome: displacement of organs. Thanks to the highly skilled, award-winning maternity team at Seton Medical Center Austin, Ashley's experience had a happy ending. Read the full story on our web site.

For more than a century, families in Central Texas have turned to Seton when experiencing the miracle of birth. When it's time to deliver, moms want a hospital and a team they can trust. At Seton Medical Center Austin, we strive to offer the highest level and continuum of care for mom and baby:

- Magnet awarded nursing team for excellence in care
- Expert teams of Ob/Gyns and specialists on medical staff
- Nationally renowned transformational practices for safer labor and delivery
- Recently renovated maternity unit designed for comfort and healing
- Highest level of neonatal intensive care unit (NICU) available in the Austin area

Seton Austin's Level III NICU is also supported by immediate access to world-renowned pediatric subspecialists at Dell Children's Medical Center of Central Texas, another member of the Seton Family of Hospitals.

Looking for a doctor who delivers at Seton Medical Center Austin? To find an Ob/Gyn on our medical staff, or take a virtual tour of our birthing center, please visit seton.net/austinbaby.

Seton
Medical Center
Austin

A member of the Seton Family of Hospitals

seton.net/austinbaby